Biographical Sketch

David J. Langum is a legal historian and Professor of Law at Samford University, Cumberland School of Law in Birmingham, Alabama. He is a past Professor of Law at Nevada School of Law, Reno, Nevada; Detroit College of Law, Detroit, Michigan; Lincoln University School of Law at San Francisco and San Jose, California; San Francisco Law School and visiting Professor of Law at Seattle University of School of Law. He received his A.B. in History from Dartmouth, M.A. in History from San Jose State University, J.D. from Stanford University, and his LL.M. and S.J.D. from the University of Michigan. His legal career started by becoming a research clerk with the Honorable Murray Draper with the California Court of Appeals with his next step being an associate with Dunne, Phelps & Mills and finally a partner with Christenson, Hedemark, Langum & O'Keefe. He is also past president and currently a director of the ACLU of Alabama, founder of the Langum Project for Historical Literature and The Langum Charitable Trust, and president of Friends of the Birmingham Public Library. His past pro bono activities include being a member of the Board of Directors for Creative Montessori School, a participant in the Speakers' Bureau for the Alabama Humanities Foundation, a member of Fee Arbitration Panel for the Santa Clara County Bar Association and president of Victorian Preservation Association. He has had memberships with the California State Bar and other bars and the American Society for Legal History. Also, he had membership with different historical societies. Since joining Cumberland's faculty in 1985, Langum has acted as Chairman of the Faculty Appointments Committee (1988-1989), Faculty Advisor to the Law Review (1987-1991 and 2001-2002), Chairman, doctoral program in Law, Religion, and Culture (1994-), and Co-Chairman, Cumberland Colloquium on American Legal History (1995-) among other committee activities.

While living in California he became very interested in the state's history and the history of the west. He was a president of the Victorian Preservation Association of Santa Clara County. When the House of the Flag in San Francisco was scheduled for demolition, he acted as the plaintiff in litigation to prevent its destruction. He was successful and the building is now permanently preserved. He has written many journal articles on the history of California. Langum is especially interested in legal history and has received many honors and awards during his lifetime. He is the author of six books, numerous journal articles and chapters in books and he has over 38 book reviews to his credit. In 1985, he edited an issue of the Journal of the West dedicated to the topic of "Law in the West". His first book, Law and Community on the Mexican California Frontier: Anglo-American Expatriates and the Clash of Legal Traditions, 1821-1846, was published in 1987 and won the James Willard Hurst Prize, from the Law and Society Association and the J.S. Holliday Award from the California Historical Society. The second book, co-written with Harlan Hague, about Thomas O. Larkin and old California, won the Caroline Bancroft History Prize from the Denver Public Library. Langum does not favor legislation that attempts to control private behavior and in 1994 his book Crossing Over the Line: Legislating Morality and the Mann Act, was published. It is a close look at cases prosecuted under this act from which he concludes that the Mann Act has been misused and should be repealed. He also has written a history of Cumberland Law School and a biography of the radical lawyer William Kunstler. His latest book is Antonio de Mattos and the Protestant Portuguese Community in Antebellum Illinois.

He is the son of Virginia (1918-1967) and John K. Langum (1913-1998), who was a noted economist, lecturer on banking and economics and a vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank in Chicago, during the 1950's, and a Chicago businessman (collection at ALPL). David grew up in Elgin, Illinois. Mr. Langum has been married three times. He and his first wife, Bernadette Williams Pucine, were married in 1970 and divorced in 1978.

He married JoAnne Adams in 1981 and divorced in 1989. They had two children, Virginia, who was born in 1981 and John, who was born in 1983. Due to problems during labor and birth, John suffered brain injuries and died in 2001. In 1996, Virginia came to live with her father, and after graduating from high school in 1999, she attended Trinity College in Dublin, Ireland, from which she graduated in 2003 with a degree in English Literature. The following year she received an M.S. in Journalism from Columbia University and in 2011 receive a Ph.D. in English Literature from Cambridge University. In 1996 David married Frances Short of Massachusetts and divorced in 2007. They have three children: David, Audrey and Anna.
